

About AmpleHarvest.org

AmpleHarvest.org is a movement helping millions of Americans in need get freshly grown food essential for better nutrition and healthier lives by directly connecting growers with local food pantries. Launched in 2009, AmpleHarvest.org educates, encourages and enables America's 42+ million growers to easily donate their excess harvest to local food pantries across all 50 states. Food pantries register with a central nationwide directory so that growers can share their fresh produce and, garden-by-garden, help diminish hunger in America. To date, more than 7,000 pantries nationwide have registered with AmpleHarvest.org to receive free, fresh, locally-grown produce from America's home gardeners enabling massive scalability of food distribution at a fraction of the operations cost thereby bringing nutrition to those who need it most.

America's problem is not that we don't have enough food.
It is that we are not using the food we have. Ampleharvest.org is the solution.
